

Nanaimo Children to Learn Death Lurks in Explosives

Special to The Daily Colonist.
NANAIMO, May 11.—One of several shells he hoped to use in making a lamp for his mother, died 15-year-old Norman Madsen today. A coroner's jury probing last Wednesday's fatal explosion today found that a two-inch mortar bomb exploded in his hands while he was sitting alone in his room surveying the souvenirs. He was literally blown to bits.

The jury verdict—death by misadventure—was accompanied by a recommendation that Nanaimo children be taught the danger of possessing explosives. Military authorities have agreed to assist.

The inquest brought out that for months Nanaimo children have been gathering "souvenirs" from the range.

Lieut. Hugh Thorburn, instructor at the small arms camp, after hearing Mrs. J. Lethbridge describe how Norman, surrounded by school chums, had on Tuesday dumped his collection from the range on to the lawn, and told the jury that it was very lucky the mortar bomb the boy had found did not explode when dumped and kill the entire party.

CHUMS RELATE VISIT TO RANGE

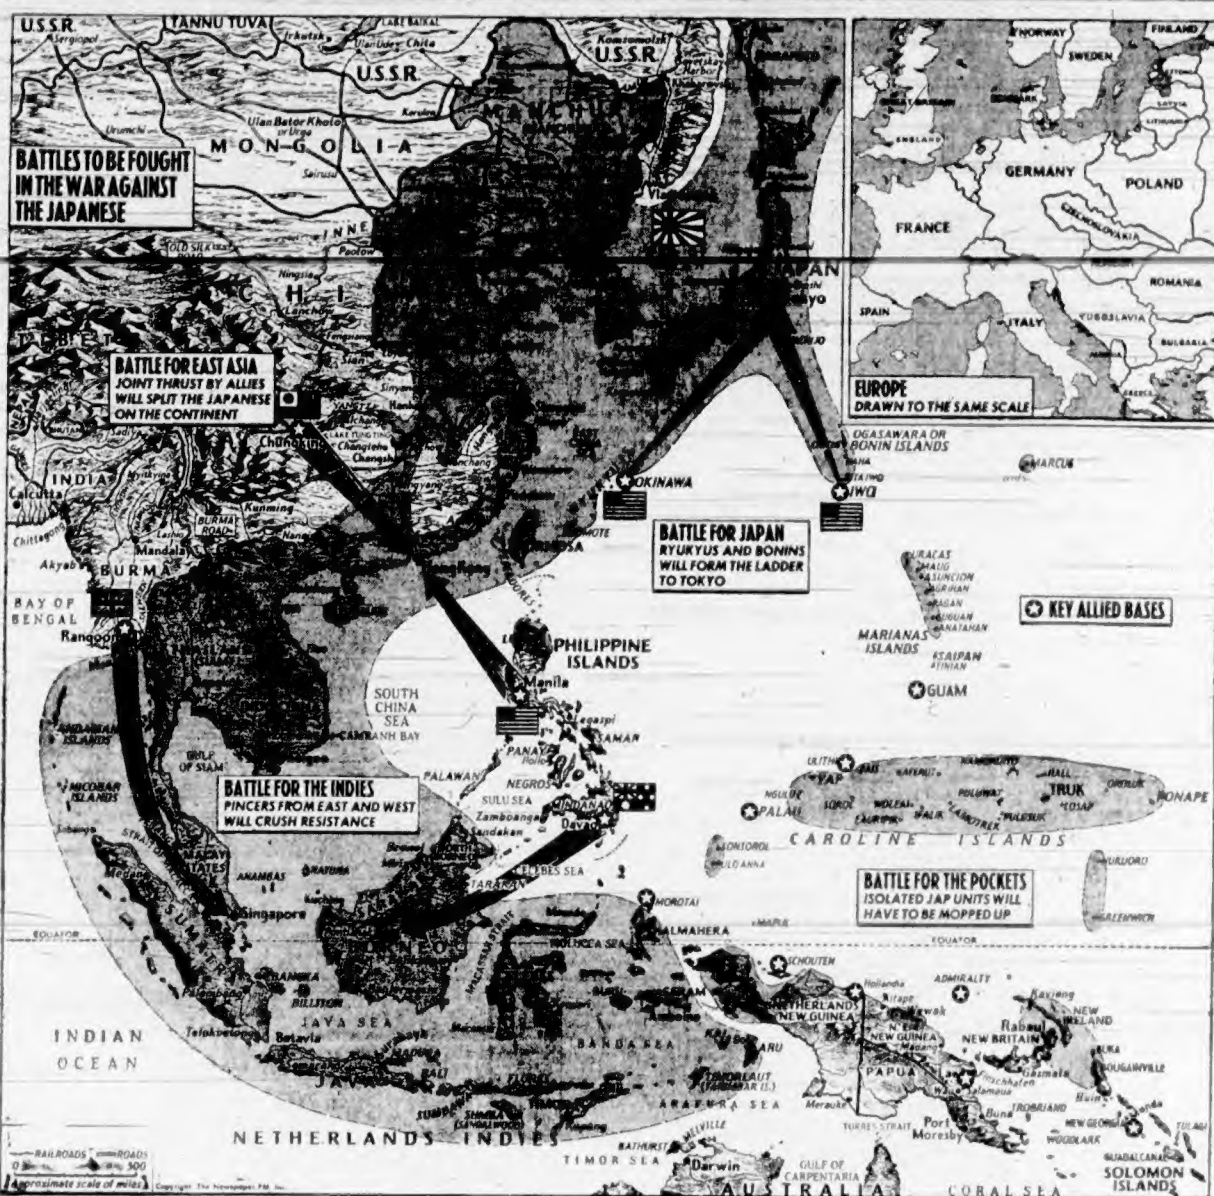

Bobby Ball and William Stephenson, school chums of the dead lad, told of going with him on Tuesday to the range to hunt souvenirs. "I saw him pick up an American bazooka bomb, two smoke bombs and some other pieces," said 15-year-old Bobby. "He took them home and dumped them on the lawn. My sisters were there, and they told him to get rid of them, but he said they were safe."

"He was going to make a lamp out of them for his mum," continued Bobby, who also said that only Wednesday morning the pupils had been warned by Principal Litch against handling explosives, and Norman had been present. Witness was going over to see Norman next day.

The return of King Leopold to his kingdom is the subject of a conference at Salzburg between representatives of the king, of the prince regent and of Premier Van Aekens. The Times Brussels correspondent says well-informed Belgians think Leopold will be restored to the throne, but there is strong opposition among many in the resistance movement and among working class parties.

GUAM May 12 (Saturday).—American Superfortresses are seeing Japan's harbors and inland sea with mines in a gigantic operation to disorganize Nippon's shipping while fleets of B-29s hammer the enemy's homeland factories and airfields.

The big bombers spanned the sea from their Marianas Islands bases yesterday in three attacks on the Empire Islands, hitting a vital sea-plane factory in the Kobo area on Honshu Island and airfields on Kyushu.

The Superforts started on March 27 the first attempt in military history to lock a maritime nation in a complete aerial mine blockade.

The B-29s, each carrying around ten tons of mines, in nearly a dozen missions have planted the explosives in the Inland Sea and the harbors of Tokyo, Nagoya and other major Japanese cities.

Nearly 150 Superforts yesterday blasted the Kawanishi seaplane plant near Kobe only a few hours after 400 B-29s had devastated Japan's oil reserves and fuel plants at Tokuyama and Osaka, on Honshu, and at Oshima.

A smaller fleet attacked the Gifu and Saeki airfields on Kyushu Island, and later another force of around 50 B-29s bombed the Kyushu industrial cities of Miyakonojo and Nittigashira, and the off-shore Miyazaki airfield.

Tokio radio reported without confirmation that the American planes also hit "military facilities" on the southwestern tip of Shikoku Island, another link in the Japanese home chain.

Crises of the War

Now that the war with Germany is ended it may be interesting to recall some of the most salient phases of that widespread and deadly conflict. All will remember the dark Summer of 1940. Norway was seized, Holland and Belgium were devastated, and Denmark succumbed without a fight. Everywhere the Nazi forces appeared irresistible. Then early in June came the smashing blow of the surrender of France, when 350,000 British troops—trapped in the north—were threatened with capture or annihilation. The story of the heroic Dunkerque evacuation will go down as one of the epics of history.

It was followed by a devastating German blitz which shattered London in parts and practically demolished such cities as Coventry and Plymouth. At the height of the air attack that Summer Britain triumphed with the great September victory that saw 186 enemy planes shot down in a single day. Never was the German air force able to attack in such numbers again.

In 1941 the war still went against the Allies. British troops sent to aid the Greeks were compelled to withdraw and Crete was evacuated. To make matters worse Italy and Romania added their strength to Germany. In North Africa the British had some success in the capture of Tobruk and Bengasi, but it proved shortlived.

In 1942 Rommel counter-attacked in Africa. His army recaptured Tobruk and drove within a day's march of Alexandria. The Americans had now entered the war and the British regathered their strength. Montgomery completely defeated Rommel at El Alamein and pursued his forces across the desert to Tunis. By this time the Allies had landed in North Africa in force, and they moved up to a juncture with the British Eighth Army in Tunisia. The result was that by the Spring of 1943 the Germans were driven out of Africa altogether.

Aided by a bitterly cold winter in January, 1943, the Russians lifted the seven-month siege of Stalingrad, and began the march back that never ceased until Berlin had fallen. In fact 1943 saw the turn of the tide for the Allies. Sicily was invaded, and two months later Italy surrendered unconditionally. It proved, however, to be but the beginning of a long campaign on the peninsula, a campaign that concluded with an Allied victory only about a week ago.

In 1944 the Allied fortunes continued to rise. The great Russian armies crossed into Poland and invaded Romania. But the greatest day of all was June 6, when the Western Allies made their successful landing in Normandy. This dramatic event was followed by a rapid sweep through France that was eventually stayed for some months on the German border. The Germans made one desperate lunge through the Ardennes woods, but were finally repulsed and driven back with heavy losses.

The present year saw the crossing of the Rhine, and all that has followed since. Certainly it has been a war of many ups and downs, but with the united strength of the British Commonwealth, the United States and Russia converging on Germany the final result was never in doubt.

New Westminster Election

The election of Byron Johnson as Coalition member for New Westminster, Thursday, was significant as marking the first serious setback for the C.C.F. during the life of the present Provincial Legislature. Previously they had scored by election gains in Salmon Arm and Revelstoke. The substantial vote for the Labor Progressive candidate as compared with the C.C.F. will be noted, even although it did not affect the result as Mr. Johnson had a large majority over the three other candidates combined. The vote for the Independent Labor candidate was insignificant. What effect the Labor Progressive vote may have on the fortunes of the C.C.F. in the forthcoming Federal election remains to be seen.

When he takes his seat in the Legislature, Mr. Johnson will be returning to the House where he sat as a Victoria representative following the election of 1933. His election will please his many friends here, the city of his birth and early manhood, and the scene of his youthful athletic triumphs. The result of the New Westminster election should strengthen the hands of the Coalition Government in its efforts to carry on under the strenuous conditions of war and to prepare for the problems of peace.

"F for Freddie"

"F for Freddie" was not seen circling over Victoria yesterday, as had been hoped. There was something almost humanly tragic in the bomber's fate. It had passed through 211 operational flights in the war without serious damage, and in its mission of peace it fell in the last lap. But the saddest feature is that two gallant R.A.F. flyers lost their lives at the same time. A machine can be rebuilt, but these young lives cannot be replaced.

"F for Freddie" has been described as the world's most famous flying fighter, and it would seem to top the doughty Mosquitos at least. In accordance with its friendly sounding name it seemed almost to have become imbued with human attributes, and so it was eminently fitting that it should have been selected to assist in the Dominion Victory Loan campaign. It had practically crossed every province in Canada except British Columbia when the crash came. Constructed from British Columbia spruce it was to know no home coming. The sturdy fighter it was, it perished in the campaign. It was like a soldier killed by the firing of the war's last shot.

The pilots were both distinguished men. Flt. Lt. Maurice Briggs had won the D.S.O., D.C.F. and D.F.M., while F.O. John Baker held the D.F.C. and Bar. When Canada had been honored by the choice of such men to assist in a vital campaign, it seems the more pathetic that their lives should have been lost on Canadian soil. To their bereaved relatives will go the nation's warmest sympathy.

Churchill's Tribute

That was a glowing tribute to Canada's war effort paid by Mr. Churchill in a message to the Canadian Prime Minister this week. It was really a "V-E" Day congratulatory. Mr. Churchill described Canada's part in the war as "a magnificent contribution to our common victory." He added that Canada might well be proud of the glorious deeds of her sons on land, on the sea and in the air. "Her valiant army was a sure shield of this country during its darkest days and has now contributed powerfully to the liberation of Western Europe."

He referred to the immense accomplishments of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, which, under Canadian administration, had proved the solid foundation for air supremacy without which the war could not have been won. He spoke of the aid given in finance, the production of munitions and of naval and merchant vessels, and the supply of foodstuffs on which the life of Britain depended.

He concluded with reference to the comradeship which flows from common ideals and the united struggle for victory. He added: "In this spirit of fellowship we now face the final struggle with our remaining foe and look forward at no distant time to building a new era of security and peace."

It was a tribute earned by Canada as a whole, by a people imbued with the one aim of defeating a common foe, a people equally determined to do its full part in the fight still to come in the Far East.

Seen in Passing

How much history can be made in five minutes was related by Margaret Ecker, a Vancouver newspaper woman, who was present when the German representatives signed the surrender at Reims. She and 16 other correspondents were crowded together in the small room where it took place. It seemed hard to believe that those ordinary sheets of paper passing from hand to hand marked the close of a war that had devastated the lives of a generation.

The handsome Marshal Zhukov may well prove to be one of the rising lights of Russia. It was a fine gesture, when in the ruins of the city he had captured he faced Air Marshal Tedder and proposed a toast to the continuing friendship of Great Britain and the Soviet Union, adding "that friendship is necessary for the future of mankind."

If all the sighs of relief that have come from thousands of homes in the past few days could be concentrated, they might form a shining cloud over the earth, and the tears of joy might create a rainbow that would reach from the heart of Germany to this Pacific Coast.

Last Wednesday was a hard day on the "ings" of the enemy camp. On that day the boasting Goering, the smiling Kesselring and the shivering Quisling were all taken into custody. There is still another word ending in "ing" that probably describes their present condition—they are all trembling.

The Russians appear to have celebrated "V-E" Day a day later than their Allies. With the many guns roaring in Moscow they made up in noise for what they lacked in promptitude.

From "The Men of Old"

I know not that the men of old
Were better than men now
Or heart more kind, or hand more bold,
Of more ingenious brow.
I heed not those who pine for force
A ghost of Time to raise.
As if they thus could check the course
Of these appointed days.

A man's best things are nearest him.
Lie close about his feet.
It is the distant and the dim
That we are rich to greet.
For flowers that grow our hands beneath
We struggle and aspire—
Our hearts must die, except they breathe
The air of fresh desire.

Yet, Brother, who up Reason's hill
Advance with hopeful cheer—
O! loiter not, those heights are chill.
As chill as they are clear.
And still restrain your haughty gaze.
The loftier that ye go,
Remembering distance leaves a haze
On all that lies below.

—RICHARD MORCKTON MILNES.

Could Not Kill
Rotterdam

By L. S. R. SHAPIRO

North American Newspaper Alliance
ROTTERDAM, Holland, May 9 (By Wire)—Grey-haired hollow-cheeked Peter Oor, who was burgomaster of Rotterdam until Arthur Seyss-Inquart dismissed him in 1941 for failure to adjust himself to the Nazi regime, returned to his great mahogany desk in the city hall today and told this correspondent in a few brief sentences the story of his city. He was surrounded by his shadow Cabinet—a group of underground patriots who spied on the Germans throughout the occupation in order to obtain precise information on destruction and atrocities. "The Germans began the occupation of Rotterdam on May 14, 1940, by destroying the centre of the city with 500 bombers at high noon," he related. "They were unopposed. It was senseless destruction. Twelve hundred civilians were killed, several thousand wounded and the whole heart of the city was razed to the ground except for three buildings, the city hall, the Bourse and the post office. It was pure and inexcusable terror bombing."

TERROR LASTED FIVE YEARS

"Afterward began the terror in the streets which lasted five years up to last Saturday. Frequently hostages were marched into the street and shot in cold blood, their bodies left lying there from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. If you walk through the city today, you can see piles of flowers on the pavements at central points. All day yesterday, Rotterdamers commemorated thus the locations of mass hostage shootings. Forty hostages were shot in front of the city hall the day after S.S. Chief Rauter's life was endangered by the underground. I was myself held as a hostage in 1942, but only for a week."

"In September, 1944, the Germans began systematic demolition of our port facilities. The Holland-America Line's million-dollar warehouse was the first to be razed to the ground. Then all port facilities on the left bank, including our magnificent installations at Warhaven, Maashaven and Rijnhaven were thoroughly destroyed."

More recently they began to destroy facilities on the right bank. They had demolished nearly six kilometers of docks, but luckily they didn't have time to destroy the remaining nine kilometers before the Allies came in.

"But please tell America this: We still have willing workers and dock capacity to receive ships, to unload them and to give them a quick turnaround."

BRAVE PILOTS FOILED GERMANS

"Although the Germans sank 20 blockade ships in the channel, our brave pilots who were ordered to put them in position for sinking managed to turn them lengthwise, thus leaving a narrow channel which now permits of navigation. Last August, the German planned to sink the new liner Zuyderland, a 10,000 tonner, as a blockade ship. Our underground learned of the plan and sank the Zuyderland at her dock before the Germans could swing her into the channel."

"Of the food situation, I need not tell you. Our death rate is five times of normal. Since September, our people have been fed half a litre of potato soup and a small crust of bread once a day—nothing else. Since November we've had no coal, gas or electricity."

But, he concluded, as he stood in the window and regarded the hysterically cheering crowds, "Rotterdam lives again. Tell your people in America this will be the same great city in a short time. The Germans tried their best, but they couldn't kill Rotterdam."

SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

Sir—Members of the National Council for Canadian-Soviet Friendship are distressed by the frequent manifestations of ignorant prejudice against our Russian ally who in recent years has so magnificently demonstrated, by wartime performance, the falsity of lies which for years flooded this country.

As we now reap the rich fruits of the Soviet Union's war preparedness—and one trembles to think of what Bersen torture camps might now have been scattered throughout our own land had not the Red Army met and smashed the military might of Nazi Germany—there creeps in another insidious campaign of lies, prejudice and ignorance about Russia, fostered by enemies of national weal and international goodwill, and carelessly accepted and repeated by people who have little better than a gossip knowledge of the facts.

An example of this has been brought to the attention of the Council for Canadian-Soviet Friendship by readers of The Colonist who expressed alarm at a new item in the issue of April 27 about a "poll" among Victoria High School students reported to the luncheon of the Rotary Club in the Empress Hotel. The report states that "belief that there would be a third world war, next time with Russia as the aggressor nation, was also voiced by the students through the poll results."

We learn upon inquiry that this poll was taken on some 40 questions for the purpose of appraising the Rotarians as to "what young people are thinking today," and we feel sure that this untoward and unintelligent expression of views about future insecurity reflects, not weakness in the standard of education in our schools, but just the common ignorance and prejudice on this subject as reflected in the home.

In this time of international stress we earnestly solicit the support of citizens in the cultivation of an in-

By G.B.

During a recent speech at Reddick, Worcester, England, Sir John Wardlaw-Milne, chairman of the select committee on national expenditure, declared: "Socialism, working through bureaucracy, central control, bundles of red tape and continuous forms, always stifles individuality and initiative, and at the best can only play for safety."

We did not build up this Empire on the basis of safety first, and if we become a nation of 'safety firsters' it would be the beginning of the end. . . . The weekly ration in five has been reduced from three-quarters of an ounce to half an ounce. . . . Tons of fruit rotted in Canada last year because house-holders and farmers were not allowed sufficient sugar for preserving. The sugar allowance is even less this year. . . . The Mackenzie King Government will be loath to ease war controls and restrictions which give members so much power over the common people. . . . The chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board stated on Wednesday that distillers would increase their prices, and the public would consequently have to pay more for a dram. Figures show profit from the sale of liquor in the province last year was fabulous, so it should be in order for the Liquor Control Board to decrease its prices, absorb the increased cost, and give the public a semblance of value for its hard earned money. . . . From The Financial Post: "Although production of radios for civilian use in Canada should begin shortly, the real bottleneck will be the ability to produce sufficient tubes to complete the sets. Before the war it was estimated that 85 per cent of Canadian radio components were imported. At present Canada can make about 70 per cent of a radio receiver in this country. Consequently, radio tube production on this continent is not adequate to handle replacement, let alone provide capacity for new sets. Manufacturing sources claim the earliest date for new civilian sets will be the first quarter of 1946."

Point System For Return of Overseas Men

MOOSOMIN, Sask., May 11 (CP).—Defence Minister McNaughton told a public meeting here tonight that a point system on which men overseas would come home would be announced shortly.

The minister, a Liberal candidate in Qu'Appelle Federal constituency, said he was satisfied Canada had been allotted her fair share of shipping to bring the service forces home. Some war planes will be made into transports to bring men back to Canada, however.

Re-establishment was the greatest importance, said Gen. McNaughton in speaking of the point system. Points will be allotted men who have dependents, for length of service in the battle area, and for wounds, he said.

FELLOW CANADIANS—The Government which you will elect on June 11th will either take us forward to a new and permanent prosperity or force us back to pre-war unemployment and chaos. Let us remember that courage, not timidity, broke the Fascist might... that planning, not "business-as-usual", won the war. What we can do in war, we can do in peace!

The Old Parties ADMIT FAILURE

• 2,000,000 new jobs are needed after the war. Yet, private enterprise plans to cut 1943 employment by at least 10%.

• A recent Government survey of industry's post-war plans proved so damaging to private enterprise that the Liberals banned it. The Cabinet refused to release the report to the press.

• A private enterprise spokesman, C. H. Carlisle, president of the Dominion Bank, warns against:

"believing that post-war conditions will be free from want, free from fear, free from unemployment and depression... We (private enterprise) are at a loss..."

This evidence proves that the Liberal-Tory-private enterprise groups stand solidly opposed to progress and the realization of a decent secure future.

Safety Rules Govern Women

Women employed in British Columbia factories may be required to wear "sensible" clothing and may be forbidden to wear jewelry and shoes with open toes or high heels if a safety inspector says so. Hon. George S. Pearson, Provincial Secretary, announced yesterday that safety regulations of this nature, previously observed by general agreement, have now been made compulsory by order in council.

They provide that where a woman is engaged in work close to power-driven machinery with moving parts, she must wear "sensible" clothing, equally effective protective covering over her hair, and must wear a overall or slacks or other equally close-fitting garments. Inspectors are given power to direct the women to wear protective clothing.

The new regulations also provide that "women shall not be required by the employer to lift more than 35 pounds in the course of their regular work" and that "women shall be prohibited from doing any type of overhead lifting or stacking."

Additional clauses state that "if the inspector so directs in writing, seats with back rests shall be provided by the employer" and that the inspector may demand that the employer provide "women's dressing-rooms with individual lockers."

Princess Commends Work at Institute Handicraft Display

"The cease fire has sounded, the German horror is over, but the hunger and desolation continues and sometimes is worse, for all communications are disrupted." Her Royal Highness Princess Alice told a gathering of members of Women's Institutes of Southern Vancouver Island at Lake Hill yesterday. Mrs. W. C. Woodward and Miss Vera Grenfell accompanied Princess Alice. Sponsored by Lake Hill Women's Institute, oldest on the Island, the affair was arranged so that the distinguished guest might see samples of handicrafts made by 11 institutes. Beautiful knitted, hand-sewn and woven articles for British war victims were on display around the hall. On arrival Her Royal Highness was met by Mrs. Alfred Watt, M.B.E., who presented leading members.

The first and strongest enemy was beaten, she stated, but there could be no real peace until the second enemy, Japan, was equally beaten. Her Royal Highness urged Women's Institutes and women everywhere to help servicemen and women returning from the front lines their place in a civilian life that had become so strange to them.

"It will be a tragedy indeed if the men and women, who in their different roles, have endured so much for the sake of the home, fail through lack of mutual understanding to live happily together in it when they at last get the opportunity so long waited for."

It will mean sacrifice and unselfishness on the part of those who stayed at home. This was where Women's Institutes could help, she declared. After the war camp furnishings of Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army and Knights of Columbus could be broken up and could be procured for village community centres sponsored by Women's Institutes.

"Out of these may come something really worthwhile and progressive which will enrich the lives of not only our returned servicemen and women but also those who have waited so bravely for their return."

Giving a picture of the work done by Southern Vancouver Island institutes the following read reports: Mrs. W. S. Webster, on agriculture; Mrs. D. J. DeRoche, on citizenship; Mrs. W. Peden, on social welfare; Mrs. E. Glover, on home economics; and Mrs. Clifford Johns, on war services. Mrs. G. W. Massey, president of Lake Hill Institute, thanked Her Royal Highness.

Mrs. Watt spoke of Princess Alice's interest in the institutes, of which she was a member, and wished her well on her return to England this year.

Nursing and National Health
III—GROWTH OF TRAINING SCHOOLS

Canada holds an important and honourable place in the history of nursing on this continent. In the early years of Confederation a few hospitals were beginning to introduce the methods of training nurses advocated by Miss Florence Nightingale. The first hospital on the American continent to adopt the Nightingale system of training was the General and Marine, at St. Catharines, Ontario, and was later known as the Mack School. This school has ever upheld the dignity of its standards and remained worthy of its pioneer traditions. The next attempt to establish a Nightingale school was made at the Montreal General Hospital, but the old order was too strongly entrenched there and it was not until many years later that Miss Nora G. E. Livingston finally managed to establish the School for Nurses which she made justly famous during her 29 years as Superintendent. The School of the Toronto General Hospital was also established against great odds. In the 25 years during which Miss Mary Agnes Snively was the superintendent, the School of Nursing enjoyed a period of great prosperity and became renowned throughout the nursing world as embodying the highest ideals in nursing. The Order of the Grey Nuns founded by Reverend Mother d'Youville were the pioneer nursing women in the West. Their first hospital, part of their Mission House, was opened in 1844 but it was not until many years later, 1897 to be exact, that their first school of nursing was established at St. Boniface, Manitoba. The several Grey Nuns' Schools of Nursing across Canada occupy an important place in nursing today.

The expansion and development of the Dominion, with its increasing population, created a demand for hospitals and nursing service. The need for qualified nurses was great and the public-minded citizens in these early years of hospital development did their best to provide for the need. Thus the 1860s-90s saw many schools established from the Atlantic to the Pacific—Halifax, Saint John, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina and Vancouver.

These schools were established on a modification of the Nightingale school which represented the first organized plan of education for nurses. It is a far cry from the 1860s to the year 1945 when one attempts to envisage the phenomenal strides in nursing education and the care of the sick accomplished in the last half century largely as the result of the foundation laid by the two illustrious women who ushered in the Natively-Livingston epoch in nursing. Fortified by the Sively-Livingston spirit of winning out over the seemingly impossible, the leaders of the nursing profession of today continue to press forward in erecting a superstructure of nursing education worthy of the foundations laid by their predecessors. This early leadership resulted in the formation of nurses' organizations.

Many of the battles fought and won for nursing education owe much of their success to the support given to the schools of nursing by the professional organizations. More and more do we realize the necessity for a strong national body to attain and maintain professional standards.

Refreshes...

Health authorities state there is no more attractive way of serving cream and milk to your family than in good ice cream.

They are right. Ice Cream is a nutritious dairy food containing the same food values (in somewhat different proportions) which place cream and milk so high in the nutritional rating.

When you serve a good ice cream like "Palm," make it part of the family meal, and not just a trimming. It nourishes as it refreshes.

Just add fresh or preserved fruit to ice cream, and presto!... you have a superbly delicious dessert. It's as easy as that!

owna, B.C., awarded a mention in despatches and Lieut. Victor Campbell Moore, Victoria, awarded a mention in despatches.

Major Schjelderup was awarded the Distinguished Service Order early this month. He was awarded the Military Cross on August 19, 1944, for outstanding action on "D" Day. He is with the Canadian Infantry Corps.

Swell Sevastopol Fund by $72 Gift

A donation of $72 for the city of Sevastopol, Victoria's "adopted" Russian city, has been made to the City Council by Victoria branch of the National Council for Canadian-Soviet Friendship, it was announced yesterday by C. K. Morrison. He stated it was hoped to make a substantial contribution through a tag day to be staged June 16 under auspices of the Federation of Russian Canadians and the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund.

The donation of $72 represents part of the proceeds of a meeting here at which Nils Magidoff was the speaker.

He also stated Max Chie, acting director of the National Council for Canadian-Soviet Friendship, would be here in June to meet the Victoria branch.

Now faith means we are confident of what we hope for, convinced of what we do not see.

Britain Keeps Conscription

LONDON, May 11 (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons yesterday conscription probably would have to remain in effect in Britain for "some years."

"We have got to settle this matter with due consideration of our difficulties and dangers which are by no means entirely at an end," he said. "And also we have to consider the very important point of young men going out to relieve their fathers and elder brothers in the duty of garrisoning Germany and in regard to the war in Japan."

Mr. Churchill said it also would be necessary "to continue compulsory recruitment of men for the forces as an essential part of the reallocation of manpower during the interim period in order to bring relief to men who have served for a long period, to enable some of them to return to their homes."

The Prime Minister spoke after Rhys Davies, Labor member for Lancaster-West Houghton, asked if Mr. Churchill was aware that "conscription ended in Canada May 7, that only volunteers will be enrolled for the war in the Pacific, and if he had any statement concerning the suspension of conscription in this country."

Mr. Davies went on: "Does it not remain in anomaly that conscription hasn't been imposed at all in Northern Ireland and that Canada has done away with conscription and may we take it that when the appropriate time arrives the British Government will not lag behind other parts of the Empire?"

Mr. Churchill replied: "It is absolutely necessary, and perhaps for some years it may be, to be sending out men to relieve those who have borne the burden and heat of the day."

Mr. Davies went on: "Does it not remain in anomaly that conscription hasn't been imposed at all in Northern Ireland and that Canada has done away with conscription and may we take it that when the appropriate time arrives the British Government will not lag behind other parts of the Empire?"

Chicago Goes in For Sight Saving

CHICAGO, May 11 (CP).—Children with defective vision are keeping pace with eagle-eyed youngsters in Chicago's public schools.

Children whose sight has deteriorated to the danger point are put in special sight-saving rooms. There they study with a minimum of eye strain, and learn how to conserve or improve their vision.

Everything in these rooms seems unique. The walls are painted a seafoam green and light floods through huge, studio-sized windows. Movable desks are shifted about so the light always comes over the students' left shoulders. Adjustable desk tops are fixed at each pupil's reading range. Blackboards are soft green, yellow chalk is an inch thick and writing paper is buff colored. Books are set in large, 24-point type and wall maps are big, simple, heavily lined.

Typical of the departments set up within various regulation elementary and high schools, are two rooms at the Bell School. In one are tots of the first through fourth grades. Some have their strong eye covered with a patch. Each use, and thus strengthens, the weak eye.

SPECIAL TYPEWRITERS
In the other room are older boys and girls. Using the touch system, they poke out their written lessons on typewriters equipped with oversize letters. When their eyes tire, they rest.

Their condition is checked and rechecked. Of the 37 scholars placed in the special rooms in the three most recent semesters, 23 fared well enough to graduate and 62 recovered sufficiently to return to their regular classes.

Trained teachers instruct the sight-savers in the special rooms, but they rotate in their regular classrooms. They also eat and play with their normal schoolmates.

Do they feel handicapped? "No," an overseer reports. "They think they're privileged."

Funeral Saturday For Dead Air Heroes
CALGARY, May 11 (CP).—A public funeral for the two R.A.F. flyers killed in the crash of the famous Mosquito plane F for Freddie will be held in Calgary Saturday.

Mr. L.L. Maurice Briggs, D.S.O., D.F.C., and D.P.M., and P.O. John Baker, D.F.C. and bar, will be buried in the field of honor, Burnside Cemetery, with full air force honors.

Tiny souls can dodge through life; bigger souls are blocked on every side.

The bidding:

The contract was a shade ambitious, but not really bad.

West led the heart queen. The ace was put up and declarer led a low trump from dummy, properly playing the eight on East's five-spot. If the ace was on deal, there was no hurry about putting in the king; that could be done just as well on the next round.

West won with the trump queen and returned a low heart. East cashed in the king and continued with the heart 10, which declarer ruffed. Now the club 10 was overtaken by the king and another low trump was led from dummy. Declarer naturally had to cover East's jack—and West, not being asleep, promptly ducked. (The trump 10 wasn't going to be an entry to dummy for a possible diamond finesse if West could help it!)

When South now ran the rest of his clubs, West coolly threw off diamonds, refusing to ruff, and the result was that South never got back to dummy for the vital diamond finesse. Down one!

South's play was good except for one crucial point. Instead of leading the second trump from dummy when he did, he should have tried the diamond finesse. If it worked he had a good play for the needed 10 tricks; if it didn't his prospects were hopeless.

BASEBALLERS START PLAY HERE TODAY

Their training grinds behind them, four of the five senior clubs in the Victoria Baseball Association will swing into action today on the Caladonia Avenue diamond as the curtain lifts on the 1945 season.

And as another season with the diamond pastimes rolls around, many and more new players are set to make their debut before the Victoria baseball fans. This year's crop-up will probably be responsible for introducing more new players than any previous season.

Biggest trouble in all camps, according to the managers, is the shortage of hurlers. Yet they all admit they have at least three pitchers apiece for the opening of the campaign.

With the league composed of the same teams as last year, however, of the diamond pastime here are looking forward to another good season. League officials continue the game is definitely expanding, and are anticipating a record 1945 attendance figures when, in the 1945 season, 40,000 fans passed through the gates at the Caladonia Avenue ballpark.

Civilian open-house ceremonies have been arranged for today, and, as the game begins, will be open to the public. The Victoria Baseball Association and the P.O.W. Division of War Reliefs Fund.

From the day with six men football in the past few years, to keep the game alive and growing, the Victoria American Football League has been working hard to attract new players and fans.

Baseball Season Opens Here Today

Navy and Army to Battle in Opener At Athletic Park

Senior Baseball Nines All Set for Action—Mayor to Officiate—Bands in Attendance

Baseball with all of its opening day fanfare and ceremony will hold the spotlight at Royal Athletic Park today when the Victoria Baseball Association ushers in the 1945 season with games scheduled at 2:30 and 6:15 p.m.

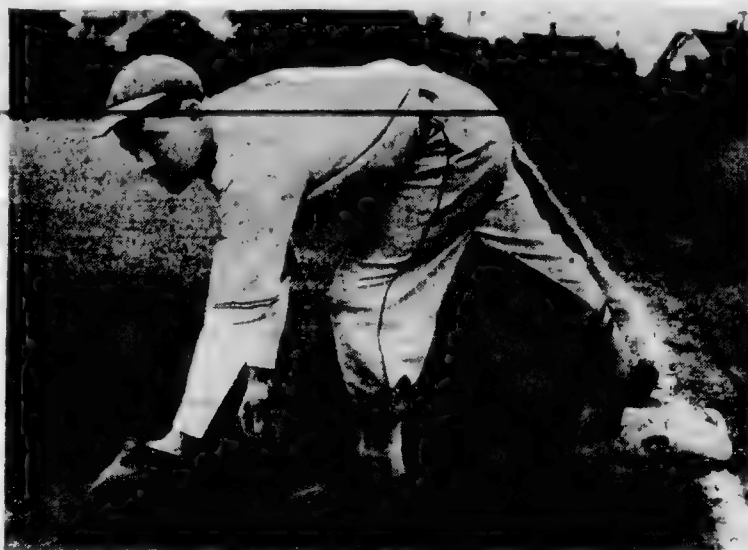

Opening day ceremonies will commence at 2 o'clock with Mayor Percy E. George officiating and throwing out the first ball. Senior officers from the Army and Navy will also participate in this traditional ceremony. W. J. Campbell, president of the association, and Mrs. Frank Dunn, secretary of the Victoria Junior League, are among others who will take part in the pregame program.

A salute to the United Nations and the recent victory in Europe will feature the pregame activities.

Esquimalt Garrison Band and the RCN Band from HMCS Naden will parade along with the members of the Army and Navy baseball clubs and four members of the Victoria Girls' Drill Team, carrying the Union Jack, the Stars and Stripes, and the Russian and Chinese flags. For the evening encounter, the Eagles Drum and Bugle Corps will make an appearance and entertain before game time.

Approximately 5000 are expected to be in the stadium during the day and the 100 W. Prisoners of War Band.

Appropriate when the ceremonies are over the Army and Navy will resume their rivalry when they meet in the evening game. These two were finalists last year and shared in a best-of-eight series.

series that set a new high for baseball entertainment here before the latter captured the championship.

MANY NEW PLAYERS WILL MAKE DEBUT

With club life a steady state of flux, players will come from all over the city to take part in the opening day games. Many new players will make their debut in the Victoria Baseball Association.

Many of the players are new to the game, but some are veterans. The Navy team, for example, has four new players, while the Army team has three.

Baseball and the R.C.A.F. team in the opening day games will have a wealth of new material. Albert Peden, manager of the Navy team, will parade to the home of the Victoria team. Peden has been in the Victoria team for many years, and he is a very experienced player. He will be the pitcher for the Navy team in the opening day game.

Labor Affairs Discussed

Necessity of teamwork between labor and management "if Canada is to progress," was stressed by Sir Henry L. Drayton, Progressive Conservative candidate for the Victoria Federal riding, at a public meeting last night in MacDonald Hall, 738 Fort Street.

"Labor is beginning to realize that the Progressive Conservative Party is aiming for exactly what it has wanted for the past four or five years," Sir Henry stated. He emphasized the need of "wiping out" labor disputes, when such were unnecessary.

Previously he had addressed members of Amalgamated Building Workers of Canada, C.I.O., Victoria - Esquimalt Local, No. 1, at 902 Government Street. It was the first time, Sir Henry claimed, that a Conservative candidate had been asked to address a labor organization here. To them he explained the labor policies of his party.

He opened the Fort Street meeting by saying: "It is great to have a job to do. That of throwing Mackenzie King out of office is the best job anyone could have." Loud applause followed.

Disagreement was expressed at recent statements made by Tim Buck, who had said there would be no majority party in the next government of Canada.

The talk lasted less than half an hour, after which a question period was held. Asked what views he took toward National Selective Service, Sir Henry replied it never had been put into effect. "There has been no proper guidance or management in that administration," he contended. He explained that if there had been good management, "every man and woman in Canada would have been placed where he or she could have done the most for the war."

"Proper administration of National Selective Service," he added, "would have prevented the trouble we have had on farms and in industry of the country."

He continued: "Every home defence man should have been placed in war work, rather than be allowed to travel throughout Canada as sightseers."

Elimination of bureaucrats was strongly advocated by the candidate, who urged that "the people's earnings must remain as much as possible in the hands of the people, rather than in the pockets of the government."

Gordon A. Cameron, president of the Victoria Progressive Conservative Association, was chairman. Sir

Many Famous Canadian Liners Sacrificed in Allied Cause

NEW YORK, May 11 (CP). — At least 199 former ocean liners have been lost through enemy action since the Second Great War opened September 1, 1939, a check of unofficial records showed today. Of these 75 were British, 21 German and 20 Italian and three Canadian.

The three Canadian ships were the Canadian National Steamships Lady Drake, Lady Hawkins and Lady Somers.

Among famous ocean queens of prewar days, now either at the bottom or badly damaged through war action that they likely will never carry passengers again, are the Empress of Britain, Empress of Asia, Empress of Canada, Duchess of Athol, Victory of India and Duchess of York.

A number of these were Canadian ships, although of British registry, including some of the major units of the Canadian Pacific passenger fleet.

Last too, was the German Bremen, Europa and Hansa, and the Italian Rex and Conte de Verde. The French liner's pride, the Normandie, not a war casualty, was burned beyond repair at her berth in New York in 1942 and captured.

First passenger vessel lost in this war, was the Athenia, torpedoed by a German submarine 300 miles west of the Hebrides on the day Britain declared war.

Another British liner the sinking of which triggered a storm of hatred for the Germans was the City of Benares, victim of a U-boat 600 miles west of Britain in October, 1940. She was bearing 1,000 refugees to the United States, and many of these British children were reported among the 248 persons drowned.

Poland lost her finest liner, the Piłsudski, off northwest England when a U-boat torpedoed her Nov. 26, 1939.

Britain lost seven small liners during the epic retreat from Dunkerque. These were the Gracie Fields, Fenella, Lorna, Mona's Queen, Brighton Belle, Brighton Queen and King Roy.

Noted vessels lost included: Jersey Bay (British), sunk Nov. 5, 1940, while serving as an armed cruiser.

Hansa (German) sunk in the Indian Ocean May 9, 1941, by the British cruiser Cornwall.

Empress of Britain (British) registered, bombed and set on fire by enemy aircraft in the Atlantic Oct. 26, 1940.

Empress of Asia (British) registered, destroyed by Japanese dive-bombers Feb. 3, 1942.

Nagara (British) registered, which used to ply out of Vancouver to Australia and New Zealand, lost in Tasman Sea Jan. 18, 1940, when she struck a mine.

Conte Verde (Italian) reported sunk at Shanghai shortly after Italy's capitulation in 1943.

Empress of Canada (British) registered, sunk by an Italian submarine off Freeport, West Africa, March 15, 1943.

Rex (Italian) was put out of action by R.A.F. off Trieste Sept. 9, 1944.

The two German giants, the Bremen and the Europa, still are somewhere in the Pacific, the fire and bombs in the port of ATLAS Jan Clayton, red-haired beauty who predicted seven years ago she would some day make Hollywood, all up and take notice, recently saw her prophecy come true. For the girl who refused to take "no" for an answer from Hollywood plays the feminine romantic lead in M-G-M's "This Man's Navy." Wallace Beery star of the Navy blimp service which ends tonight at the Atlas Theatre.

CADET Anthony Quinn is the THEATRE bet-a-million gambler in Damon Runyon's "Irish Eyes Are Smiling," which ends tonight at the Cadet Theatre. The 20th Century-Fox Technicolor musical, which is packed with America's favorite love songs, stars Monty Woolley, June Haver and Dick Haymes.

CAPITOL Humphrey Bogart, star of the new Warner Bros. hit, "To Have and Have Not," a Howard Hawks production which ends tonight at the Capitol Theatre, hopes he did the right thing in sending an autographed picture to a juvenile fan of Minneapolis. The photo was in answer to a fan letter Bogart recently received. The boy wrote: "Dear Mr. Bogart: I want to hang you in my room."

DOMINION They bombed "Hotel Berlin" on the Warner Bros. set — and got much more than they'd counted on. The screams reached a higher and more fearful pitch than expected and a woman, an extra, fainted. It happened during the filming of the Warner Bros. picture by that name which is now showing at the Dominion Theatre. The extras were not told of the explosion incident, and so they really registered surprise.

YORK A tempestuous romance of the gladiators of New York is now showing at the York Theatre. It is "Little Old New York" and it boasts an excellent cast headed by Fred MacMurray, Alice Faye and Richard Greene. On the same bill Bert-Balsley, Fred MacMurray and Shirley Ann Richards head the cast in "The
